Interesting times, these days of ours! ♦ Confusion is more likely the word du jour as our society struggles with the redefining of all things sacred. ♦ One wonders as we wander, how did the seemingly straightforward, safe, path ever lead to this land of bewilderment? ♦ Here ♦s one possibility:
♦ My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge; because you have rejected knowledge, I reject you from being a priest to Me. ♦ And since you have forgotten the law of your God, I also will forget your children. ♦♦ Hosea 4:6 (ESV) ♦ Harsh! ♦ However, spot on! ♦ Ignorance breeds contempt, leading to arrogance, making one impervious to error. ♦ Being warm, well fed, and relatively secure, we have by-in-large become much too busy and important for God; therefore we have dismissed Him ♦ covertly of course! ... Hmmm? ♦ Ok, for the sake of brevity... what do we do to change the environment? ♦ Short answer... cull. ♦ Most need (yes, need) to begin a culling in their lives. ♦ Removing distractions that have diminished devotion. ♦ Cull and refocus. ♦ Life doesn't happen in a vacuum. ♦ Recommitting to the deep can draw others along, ♦ deep calls to deep. ♦♦ It begins with personal decisions and choices ♦ new directions that create their own current, drawing others in their wake. ♦ Perhaps your devotion will give another the notion that they are missing something vital to their survival. ♦ Who knows? ♦ You may be the catalyst that brings divine change to your community! ♦ Dale
